Instilling and encouraging a strong business development culture in your firm makes great business sense. It can prove to be an important differentiator and can positively influence the firm’s project delivery, hiring and recruiting, and career development processes. Developing a business development culture requires understanding the distinction between marketing and business development, exposing false common business development myths, recognizing the many ways in which technical staff can contribute to the business development process, and investing in strategies that yield the highest return-on-investment.

Governmental Affairs –
Kansas State Representative Blaine Finch  10:30 am – 12:30 pm
The government’s leadership influences the overall business climate and an individual firm’s success.
